LeBrody James Storyboard

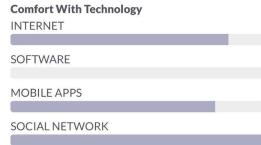

LeBrody James - Genar Villalva

age: 19
residence: McBryde
education: Highschool occupation: Full-time student marital status: Single, with 2 kids (allegedly)

"C'mon man, that's too easy"

Aspiring to be a D1 esports player. He spends most of his time on the computer and he would rather crank 90s in Fortnite than socialize with other people.

Criteria For Success:
Becoming the best video game player ever

- Needs
- Better wifi
 - Better computer
 - The loving touch of another human being

- Values
- Being good at games

- Wants
- More friends to play in a squad with

- Fears
- Being at the bottom of the leaderboard
 - Lagging out of a game because of the wifi
 - Dying alone

It was a typical Friday night for LeBrody James. He just got done with classes and he booted up his computer to play some games on his computer.

After several hours of playing a multiplayer game alone, LeBrody James felt very sad and lonely. He really wanted friends to play with, preferably friends that are at USC so that they can play together in his dorm.

“Lebrody James” download the College Friend Finder App ™ and you can find people to play with there

But god said

Suddenly, LeBrody James heard a voice inside him. It said...

LeBrody James' phone POV:

Chat with new friends!

Share and discuss your interests!

100+ million people to meet!

He debated if he was schizophrenic or not, but he decided to listen to the voice and download the app. LeBrody James' mind was blown... Through the app, he was able to finally join chat groups of USC students who also play the same games as him and he was able to finally find people to play his multiplayer game with.

LeBrody invited his new friends to his dorm by sending them his location through the app and they all played together at his dorm. The End.

MOBILE APPS
SOCIAL NETWORK

Needs

- More human interaction
- Love
- Someone to always have his back

Wants

- A significant other with the same interests
- Opportunities to hang out with others
- To learn more about the goings-on of campus

Values

- Does not like cursing
- Honesty
- Being kind
- Love of cats

Fears

- He's let academics control his life and now he is going to die alone
- He will peak in high school
- He will never find love

MOBILITY LABS

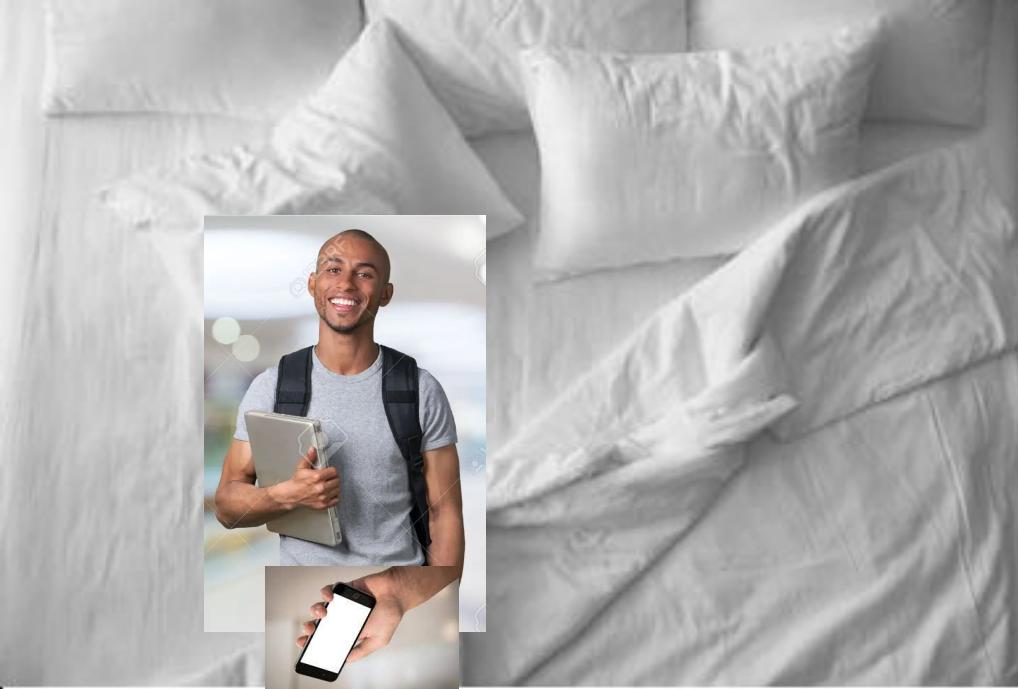

Lewis blinks his dry eyes as he closes his textbook. He looks around the quiet space that surrounds him, alone. Ever since he left home to attend College University, many of his nights have looked exactly like this.

With his bag packed, he makes his way out of the library and back towards his dorm. He passes the window of a coffee shop. Its filled with warmth and numerous college students all having fun. He wonders to himself how they got there, surrounded by friends.

He makes his way into a room that feels unfamiliar. The walls are nearly empty and Lewis has been so busy that he is yet to unpack. His roommate is god knows where...probably out having fun again. Once again, he finds himself alone.

When all of the sudden an app is suggest to him: College Friend Finder. He thinks to himself that this couldn't possibly be the solution. It couldn't be this easy.

But it is! The app has a fresh interface that may be complicated to a possible older user, but for most youth, who are generally technologically savvy, it's no more complicated than any other social media app.

Lewis inputs some his data such as his campus, major, interests, and other things that narrow down his possible results. He spends a little bit swiping before getting a match! He begins chatting with the match and find out they're in the same class!

He and his new friend set up a study session and hang out in the library. No more lonely nights studying!

Criteria For Success:

Having plenty of genuine friends who understand and care about me while also still getting my degree

Needs

- I need to maintain my good grades while also improving my mental health and social skills
- I need to meet people who genuinely care and don't try to distract me / hookup with me
- I must not meet hateful / harmful people

Values

- Authenticity
- Faithfulness
- Reliability
- Inclusivity
- Respect

Wants

- People who are mutually interested in meeting others and having a friendship.
- Study buddies

Fears

- Meeting hateful people
- Meeting harmful people who will try to make me get involved in bad stuff
- Getting made fun of Jordyn has crippling depression. As a result, she sleeps in very late, and when she wakes up, she has very little motivation to do anything except go to class. She has not been very social since moving to an unfamiliar place.

Jordyn hopelessly tries to text the love of her life, her high school crush, but the love is not reciprocated as Jordyn is somewhat obsessive, and her crush is straight. Her crush appears online, but she goes offline, ignoring Jordyn's texts. She does not get many notifications or messages from others

In a fit of rage, Jordyn throws her phone across her dorm, starts sobbing, and decides to take a break from class today. Her lack of socialness has become so bad, she is beginning to skip class

Fortunately, Jordyn realizes this, and she goes to Google to try and find out how to be more social in college. She reads through a bunch of websites, but they don't seem to be of any help. Right as she is about to put up her phone, an ad for an app called College Friend Finder gets her attention, and she becomes curious. Feeling like she had no other options, she decides to download the app

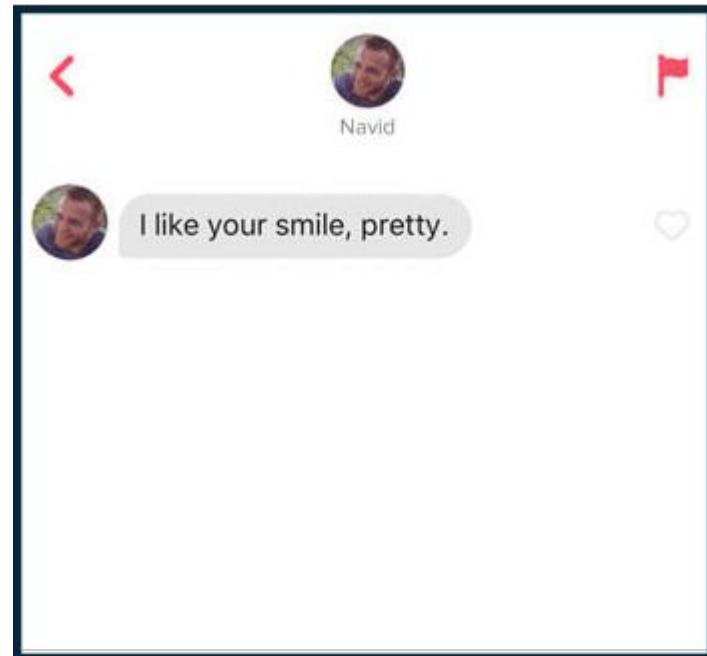

Upon launching the app and creating an account, she is shocked by the options on the app. It has the ability to put in every single option she could possibly imagine to help her connect with others. She immediately feels hope because she knows she is not alone and there are many others out there with the same interests as her.

After entering her interests and reaching the main interface, she is mesmerized by all of the people she sees. They are all the perfect kind of person to her! She can't stop swiping right on all of the hotties she sees and screenshotting them. Despite being on the same exact campus as her, she never thought she could find her kind of people

Within a few minutes, she gets her first message, and she is absolutely elated. She is becoming more social now than she ever has been. She immediately starts asking people if they want to hang out. Now, she has a will to do things and is super excited for what the future holds
